Living with Art... A way of life that I have embraced since I was a teenager living in DC. Later, from a small Boston dormitory room to my current residence, I always enjoyed having artwork around me (both at home as well as in the workplace). As an artist, I also appreciate the talented architects, interior designers, gallerists, art consultants, and others, who have collaborated with a variety of clients (individuals, couples, and families as well as art curators and other professionals) to encourage collecting art, too (including a few of my own pieces!). Here is a set of images that feature my artwork in residential settings. It is sincerely heartwarming to witness how others live with my art in a wide assortment of beautiful, personal surroundings. Moreover, collectors also have shared their enthusiasm with loved ones by acquiring artwork and presenting pieces — as special gifts — to other friends and family members, too!
